Nan Tolson is the Director of Texas Conservatives Concerned About the Death Penalty. Previously, Tolson worked for Governor Greg Abbott for five years where she held many roles including Deputy Press Secretary, Chief Spokesperson, and Communications

Manager. Her experience also includes time in Senator Ted Cruz's office and on Senator Rand Paul's 2016 presidential campaign. In 2024, Tolson was named 40 Under 40 in Texas conservative politics by the Texas Federation of Republican Women. She is a graduate of Baylor University and resides in Dallas.

Now serving his seventh term in the Kansas House of Representatives, Rep. Bill Sutton brings over a decade of principled leadership, fiscal responsibility, and common-sense policymaking to Topeka. Representing the values of his community with clarity and conviction, he currently serves as Chairman of the House Insurance Committee and sits on the powerful Appropriations and Commerce, Labor and Economic Development Committees.

A lifelong Catholic, Rep. Sutton holds a consistent pro-life voting record on every life issue, reflecting his deeply held commitment to protecting the sanctity of life at every stage.

Krisanne Vaillancourt Murphy serves as the executive director of Catholic Mobilizing Network (CMN), where she oversees the organization's strategic direction and priorities. Since 2017, she has championed CMN's trailblazing mission to end the death penalty and promote restorative justice solutions and responses to harm, violence and crime. She drives anti-death penalty and restorative justice formation programming through strategic initiatives, state and federal advocacy, and in collaboration with an extensive network of more than 30,000 advocates, including Catholic bishops, dioceses, state Catholic conferences, religious communities, lay leaders, and people of goodwill from across the nation.
